Welcome to the Expo

Welcome message from Minister for Education and Training

Western Australia is in a fortunate position, with the State's economy recovering quickly following COVID-19. The McGowan Government has invested $5.5 billion in WA's Recovery Plan to create jobs and get people back into work.

Skilled workers across a range of trades and occupations are already in high demand in industries like construction, engineering, information technology, hospitality, agriculture and community services.

More than $57 million has been invested into training to ensure it is more affordable and accessible than ever with course fees in high priority courses slashed by up to 72 per cent. Some courses are even free for those under 25 or looking for work.

We have also announced a record $167.4 million investment in capital works projects to upgrade essential infrastructure across TAFE, creating world-class learning opportunities for students.

The State Government is very proud to support the 2020 SkillsWest Expo as it highlights the enormous range of skills training offered by the VET sector and its importance in developing highly skilled people in rewarding and increasingly diversified work.

Staff from the Jobs and Skills Centres as well as TAFE colleges will be available at the Expo to assist visitors with their training needs, including information on apprentices and traineeships.

Local training ambassadors, including winners from this year's WA Training Awards, who have seen first-hand the benefits of training will also be available at the SkillsWest Expo to share their experience and knowledge.

I encourage you to experience everything on offer at this year's SkillsWest Expo, and take every opportunity to chat with highly skilled trainers, employers and apprentices.

Resume Advice

Most job seekers start their quest for employment by completing a resume outlining their qualifications, work experience, and personal attributes, then look for a job.

But, according to personal branding, recruitment and human resources expert, Marlene Cole, things have changed significantly in resume requirements that will impress a prospective employer.

“The huge majority of Australian job seekers are using old template-style resumes that do not get through the competitive process that will lead to an interview,” she explained.

“The biggest change in resumes is that one size doesn’t fit all. You must adapt your resume for each job application and there are key elements that must be addressed. Grabbing a resume template off Google or Microsoft Office is the biggest mistake people make. Don’t do it! If you are applying for jobs and hearing nothing, your resume is not working.

“The new generation careers resume has a targeted headline, key word section and clear, quantifiable bullet points that will create a first impression foothold, show that the job seeker takes their career seriously, and demonstrate the value the person will bring to a company through storytelling.”

Marlene said job seekers often required the support of a professional career practitioner to help them develop the resume and presentation skills they need to get noticed.

Marlene has been writing resumes and LinkedIn profiles along with interview and job coaching for more than 15 years.

As an international multi-award winning resume writer, she has written resumes, performed job-search coaching and prepared candidates for interviews ranging from entry level to executive positions. This includes first time job seekers, people seeking to advance their careers within their current employer, and others looking for a complete new career path.

“I am passionate about helping people develop the career tools needed to get noticed and on the path to workplace success and job satisfaction,” Marlene explained.

Set Yourself up for Success with the ADF

Join the Australian Defence Force at the Expo to see where your technical skills and interests could lead. Talk to current serving women and men about their careers and how they've set themselves up for the future.

If your ambition is to acquire recognised trade qualifications and work on sophisticated equipment in varied environments, where no day is the same as the last, a career in the Australian Defence Force might be for you. Every role in the ADF comes with a great starting salary, the potential to travel and have some truly amazing experiences.

Technologically savvy Australians can learn skills in the Navy, Army or Air Force to expand their capabilities and interests far beyond opportunities available in a civilian workplace. You could find yourself on board a ship working on advanced weapons systems or deployed on operations, responsible for maintaining vital military vehicles and equipment.

Petty Officer Matthew Cace, an Avionics Technician in the Royal Australian Navy, says his job has helped him to live out his dream of travelling the world. His day job involves working on the Navy's state-of-the-art helicopters that are critical to Navy operations, delivering supplies, personnel, resources, and defensive capability.

"I was drawn to the Navy because of the technology we get to work on from helicopter's electronics and avionics, through to weapons systems, training systems, sonar, radar, flight control, radios and communications," PO Cace said.

Petty Officer Matthew Cace

PO Cace is attending the Expo and is looking forward to sharing his experience. He says it was talking to a serving ADF member that led him to join the Navy. "With an extraordinary variety of trades and technical professions on offer, there is a career option to suit everyone in the Navy, Army or Air Force and we're here to help you work out the one that is best for you," PO Cace said.

The Australian Defence Force will have interactive, technical trade's displays at the SkillsWest Careers and Employment Expo to provide a taste of ADF life.

The Job Creator in the Goldfields Region

Norton Gold Fields is one of Australia's largest domestic gold producers, with recent annual production of up to 200,000 ounces.

The Company has a mining and processing complex in Western Australia's world-class Kalgoorlie goldfield region, including a highly prospective tenement package of more than 1,000km² surrounding the 3.8Mtpa Paddington Mill.

Norton Gold Fields, have reinforced the local employment model by moving the Norton corporate headquarters and all corporate staff positions including the CEO, to Kalgoorlie. Norton Gold Fields has close to 350 employees, many with their families residing in the City of Kalgoorlie Boulder, and to date Norton enforces a residential based recruitment strategy. This results in $43M being injected into the community each year in salary and wages. Norton Gold Fields is committed and proud to have a residential workforce.

Currently Norton Gold Fields is progressing its expansion of two underground mine sites namely Tuart and Enterprise and various open pit projects such as Federal, Jakarta, Golden Funnel, Rose Dam South and Rose Dam North this year.

In 2020, Norton invested in a new Binduli low grade project 30km south-west of Norton's Paddington Mill, intending to boost the production and extend the life of mine for more years to come. Norton strategy would see the mining of refractory ore sources for treatment at the Paddington Mill.

The plans also include the building a new operation centre to support its low-grade mining and ore treatment facilities which is about 30-km south-west of Norton's Paddington Mill. This two-pronged strategy would create about 220 jobs from next year.

As a business, Norton Gold Fields will continue to support the local community, create jobs for local residents and bring in more people to join and grow the local community. We are determined to work together with the local government, community members, mining industry regulatory bodies and other local mining companies to overcome the special challenges faced by residential mines in a regional area and believe that we could make positive contributions to ensure Kalgoorlie-Boulder is a desirable place for people to live and work.

Jobs & Skills Centre

There's never been a better time to get into training.

With more than 1,000 nationally recognised courses and 180 half-price qualifications available through a vocational education and training (VET) pathway, making your career dreams a reality is within reach.

As well as being highly valued by employers, VET students benefit from diverse and flexible study options, which support them to gain the skills they need to graduate job-ready.

Western Australian TAFE colleges and private training providers offer a wide variety of courses from traditional trades like construction, automotive and engineering, through to business, nursing, agriculture, aged care, disability support, hospitality, logistics and cybersecurity. If the vocation exists, there is likely to be a VET pathway to help get you there.

As the economy recovers from the impacts of the pandemic, skilled workers across a range of trades and occupations are in high demand.

As part of the WA Recovery Plan, the State Government is investing $57 million in reduced fees and free courses to get the State back on track. The Commonwealth Government has also contributed a further $51 million to maximise the large number of reduced fee courses.

We are also upgrading essential infrastructure across TAFE colleges to create world-class and industry relevant learning opportunities for students.

WA needs skilled workers to rebuild businesses and communities. The State Government is supporting Western Australians who might be looking for a job, thinking about a career change, or upskilling to invest in their future and get skills ready.

Training in WA is now more affordable and accessible so you can boost your skills and be job ready as the WA economy recovers. The Lower fees, local skills initiative reduces course fees for 180 high priority qualifications by as much as 72 per cent to get Western Australians back into work in areas that will drive economic activity across the State.

The maximum annual fee students will pay is also capped; at $400 for concession students and youth, and $1,200 for non-concession students. Plus – if you're under 25 or looking for work, there are a number of free short courses you can do. Short courses provide a launch-pad to upskill for new jobs or get on the path to a full qualification.

If you think paid on the job training sounds good, there are also more than 650 apprenticeships and traineeships available in WA across a range of industries, which combine hands on skills with off the job training.

You can even fast track your career by beginning your apprenticeship or traineeship while you're still at school, or get a 'taster' of working in an industry with a pre-apprenticeship.

Will you be one of the thousands of West Aussies taking advantage of what VET has to offer? For more information contact your local Jobs and Skills Centre, TAFE or private training provider, or find a course online at jobsandskills.wa.gov.au/skillsready.

Staff from the Jobs and Skills Centres will be attending the SkillsWest Expo, and invite you to stop by Site 15 for a chat.

Pathway to become an Electrician

3 reasons why the “pre-app” is the prominent pathway to becoming an electrician.

The opportunity for a school-based pre-apprentice (or ‘pre-app’) to be able to use their time in years 11 and 12 to begin their electrotechnology journey, has proven to be of great value to industry – and the student.

Mandatory work experience, conducted under the requirements of a training licence adds a level of integrity to the training. Whereas the institutional delivery of Certificate II qualifications is suitable for the business or nontrade pathways, without mandatory work experience, a number of negatives present themselves. We take a look at some areas where a genuine pre-apprenticeship is of major benefit to an apprentice’s pathway.

Safety

Safety in our industry is of the highest importance, and mandatory training licences required for work experience ensure that the pre-apprentice is aware of the dangers before they venture into the workplace.

Building and Energy’s apprentice safety assessment guidelines test and report regime requires the pre-apprentice to complete a safety assessment before they can be issued their training licence. The assessment includes ‘supervision’ and ‘not working live’ elements. This assessment must be completed under the invigilation of a fully licensed electrician.

Job Ready

Potential employers considering an apprentice are now relying on the pre-apprenticeship pathway as an introduction to job-ready apprentices. Reason being, they have been exposed to the realities of tradie life. The school environment, with relatively late starts, long breaks and early finishes, isn’t a practical preparation for the life of an electrician.

The pre-apprenticeship is like a month-long interview, with the student having to front up to site on time, in PPE and with a ‘can do’ attitude. Additionally, the pre-apprentice now has to be self-motivated – always at job-ready quality. The trade teacher isn’t going to push the student the way their high school teacher would. The learning habits from school change and lifelong learning habits need to be developed, especially if the pre-app gains an apprenticeship. It might be all exciting on day one, but their attitude by day twenty (especially as they aren’t getting paid), is the real test of their metal.

College Ready

School isn’t the same as Trade College, as the learning shifts from curriculum to competency-based.

The pre-apprenticeship allows the future sparkie to get their hands on the gear, to strip and terminate cables, solder components and learn how to use a drill correctly. With safety training intrinsic to each unit undertaken, the pre-app is developing skills and valuable knowledge that transfer into the apprenticeship.

In summary, the pre-apprenticeship is now the prominent pathway into the Cert III Electrotechnology Electrician qualification. Knowing the difference between a Cert II and a Cert II Pre-Apprentice, can be all the difference between employing a ‘job-ready’ apprentice or not.

If you’re a student looking to kick-start a career as an electrician or an electrician looking to employ a ‘job-ready’ apprentice, come talk with the team from The College of Electrical Training (CET) at Site 39.

Affordable Aviation Courses

Would you like a Career as a Commercial Pilot?

A career as a commercial pilot is undoubtedly one of the most exciting and rewarding careers available, one that many young people are attracted to from an early age. Until recently flying training has fallen outside the formal tertiary education system, resulting in it also being one of the more expensive career options.

Southern Aviation is a Registered Training Organisation based in Bunbury which is authorised to conduct training for the issue of two separate Diploma of Aviation Qualifications.

The school is also approved under the Higher Education Support Act 2003 to offer VET Student Loans to eligible students for these courses. VET Student Loans is an Australian Government loan scheme that assists eligible students to pay their tuition fees for higher-level VET courses undertaken at an approved provider.

For those not wanting to do a three-year degree and rather focus more specifically on a piloting qualification that will allow them to enter the industry as soon as possible, a limited number of places are available in our 2021 courses.

- AVI50219 Diploma of Aviation (Commercial Pilot Licence)
- AVI50519 Diploma of Aviation (Instrument Rating)

Since its founding in 2002, the School has established a reputation for providing a high quality service at affordable rates.

The school uses a fleet of Cessna single-engine aeroplanes for basic and intermediate training and a PA44 Seminole for advanced multi-engine training. Our Redbird MCX full-motion simulator is used for synthetic training and provides the platform for multi-crew training.

For information on pilot training courses and VET student loans, talk with Bunbury Flying School at Site 68 or contact us on 08-97254145 www.bunburyflyingschool.com
